Storing Leftovers Safely

Store leftovers properly to keep them safe. Put leftovers in clean, covered containers. Store a large amount of a leftover in several small shallow containers instead of one large container. For example, when you make a big pot of soup, pour the soup into several small, shallow containers, rather than one big one. Put the containers in the refrigerator immediately. Do not leave out on the counter top.

The chart on the next page shows the maximum amount of time that leftovers should be kept in the refrigerator or freezer. The length of time that leftovers can be kept safely depends on:

- ◆ whether the food was handled safely during preparation.
- ◆ how fast the food cooled down to freezer temperature or refrigerator temperature.
- ◆ the temperature of the refrigerator or freezer.

Once leftovers are reheated, they should not be stored again. Throw away any reheated leftovers that are not eaten.

Take-home Storage Chart for Leftovers

Food	Refrigerator (40° F)	Freezer (0° –10° F)
Fresh eggs in the shell	4–5 weeks	Yolks do not freeze well alone. Mixed white with yolk can be frozen 1–2 months.
Eggs, liquid pasteurized or egg substitutes, opened	3 days	Do not refreeze
Cooked meat, casseroles, soups and stews, gravy and meat broth	1 day	2–3 months
Cooked poultry, poultry dishes	1–2 days	4 months
Chicken nuggets, patties	1–2 days	1–3 months
Cooked fish	1–2 days	1 month
Hot dogs, opened package	1 week	1 month (wrapped)
Lunch meats, opened package	3–5 days	1 month (wrapped)
Baby food:
Strained fruits and vegetables*	1–2 days	6–8 months
Strained meats and egg yolks*	1 day	1–2 months
Meat-and-vegetable combinations*	1–2 days	3–4 months
Deli and vacuum-packed products:
Store-prepared (or homemade) egg, chicken, tuna, ham, or macaroni salads	3–5 days	These products do not freeze well.
Pre-stuffed pork and lamb chops, chicken breasts stuffed with dressing	1 day

* These storage times are for opened jars or homemade baby food. Follow the “use by” date for shelf storage of unopened jars.
